What is this study about?

This study is about coronavirus (also called COVID-19) and people with learning disabilities.

We asked about people living in England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland.

We talked to 272 family carers and paid support.
This report is about what we have found so far.

Family carers and paid supported told us about 158 people with learning disabilities and 114 people with profound and multiple learning disabilities.
We asked people what had happened in the last 4 weeks

Most family carers and paid support staff had good health

7 out of 10 family carers and paid support staff reported that they felt stressed

6 out of 10 family carers and paid support staff reported feeling tired

4 out of 10 family carers and paid support staff reported feeling cross
What would help?

- Family carers and paid support staff wanted a rest.
- Family carers and paid support staff wanted a holiday.
- Family carers and paid support staff wanted services to open up again.
- Family carers and paid support staff wanted people with learning disabilities to see their family and friends.
What happens next?

We want to find out more about people with learning disabilities and COVID-19.

We will talk to people again from July.
